OF NINETEEN HUNDRED FORTY-ONE

Presenting the Class of 1941

FOREWORD

One hundred years ago, long before Brighton became a part of Boston, the Brighton High School was established. In recognition of this fact the Class of 1941 has most appropriately made this Year Book the Centennial Number.

Let us go back one hundred years. In 1841 Harrison became President, having defeated Henry Clay. Daniel Webster was Secretary of State. Calhoun was in the Senate, and Andrew Jackson was still living. Verily there were giants in those days. Neither Florida nor Texas had been admitted to the Union. The Mexican War was still to come, and the Civil War did not begin until twenty years later.

The telegraph was still in the experimental stage. The Atlantic cable was undreamed of. There were no telephones, automobiles or radios. Indeed there was no football or baseball either. Such was the historical background when the Brighton High School came into being.

We have an old photograph of the school of uncertain date. When I see the simple frame building with the masters in stove-pipe hats and the teachers in hoop-skirts standing amid the few pupils, I cannot but contrast the scene with our present magnificent building with more than sixteen hundred pupils, with the splendid equipment of auto shops, kitchens, dressmaking rooms, office practice rooms, science laboratories, and art rooms.

Let us not, however, "despise the day of small things." Let us not become unduly mechanized for "it is the spirit that quickeneth." The people of 1841 had their problems and faced them courageously. In these days of uncertainty I have faith in the public schools of America and faith, too, in its splendid youth so well represented by the Brighton High School Class of 1941.

HERBERT T. RICH

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

On behalf of the Senior Class of 1941, I take great pleasure in extending to Mr. Rich and the entire faculty, our deepest heartfelt gratitude and appreciation for their tolerance, and loyalty toward us in the past three years.

There can be no doubt in our minds that the lessons of good sportsmanship, honesty, and discipline will be most useful to us as we begin the next chapter of our lives.

I am confident that in the years to come we shall be even more grateful to our benevolent teachers and shall often have occasion to look back fondly upon the joyous days spent in Brighton High School.

BRIGHTON — 1841-1941

In 1631, a year after the settlement of Boston, the present city of Cambridge was settled under the name of Newe Towne. Brighton was then a part of Newe Towne known as the South Side or Little Cambridge. Those were the days when the spinning wheel was a necessary article in every home.

The territory was mainly agricultural, and the farms were few and far between. The Nonantum Tribe of Indians lived on the hills which surround Oak Square. The Nonantum Trail came down through the hills (Nonantum Street) and under the Great Oak which stood in the middle of Oak Square. From there the trail went through the Faneuil section to the Charles River which the Indians called Quinobeguin.

The Great Oak was the pride of the local farmers. It was found to be the largest oak in the state. There was a large opening in the base of the tree. The children attending the school nearby played in the hollow part. It was said that sixteen children could fit in the tree at the same time. This oak was cut down in 1865, and a small park was made on the spot where the tree stood.

The first church in Brighton was on the corner of what is now Washington

Street and Market Street. In 1808 a new church was built, and the lower floor of the old building was converted into a classroom while the upper floor was used as a Town Hall.

On March 22, 1841, it was voted to establish a High School on Academy Hill. When the Academy had been acquired, the more advanced pupils were transferred there and the others remained at the Town Hall. In this first Brighton High School Mr. John Ruggles was principal of the boys' division (73 boys) and Miss Delia Gardner was the head of the girls' department (63 girls). The curriculum consisted of Latin, French, Italian, math, astronomy, and philosophy.

In the year 1779, the people of Brighton voted to be separated from Cambridge. They decided upon the name of Brighton after Brighton, England, which had been named after Brithelm, a bishop of the tenth century. In 1873 Brighton was annexed to Boston.

A new Brighton High School was built in 1896, and John C. Ryder was the headmaster. This building, now the William Howard Taft, was Brighton High until the year 1930 when our present building was built.

The progress of the three Brighton High Schools is typical of the progress of our beloved Brighton.

EDITOR'S NOTE

On behalf of the Staff of the "Gothic" I wish to present this, the thirteenth number of our Year Book, to the members of the Class of 1941, the Centennial Graduating Class.

The making of this book demanded many toilsome hours. However, these hours were made pleasant by the association with the various members of the Staff. To them and to Miss O'Neill do I wish to extend my sincere thanks.

THE GLEE CLUB

This year's girls Glee Club owes its success to the able guidance of our director, Mr. Burke.

We have in our Glee Club some of Brighton High School's most talented girls. Out of these girls, an Octette and a Double Octette were chosen. We usually have a single Octette, but there were so many lovely voices that the Double Octette was formed.

The Glee Club and the Octette participated in many of our school events and assemblies. These appearances gave the girls an opportunity to show what they could do.

Glorla Ross, President

ORCHESTRA

During the season of 1940-1941 the Brighton High School Orchestra under the skillful direction of Mr. H. Dana Strother, of the Music Department and Mr. Warren C. Burnham of the faculty, has had a very successful season, having played for Assemblies, the Senior Play, and Evening School Graduation.

The orchestra consists of two drums, one symbol, six trumpets, five violins, one cello, one french horn, five clarinets, and one marimba.

B. H. S. PATROL

This is the conclusion of the sixth year of the Brighton High School Patrol which has kept orderliness and cleanliness prevalent in and about the lunchroom and school.

A very successful year of patrol duties has been ours, under the able leadership and amicable personality of Mr. Leary, our faculty adviser.

This year's co-captains were Donald Foley ably assisted by his lieutenants Walter Stadtman, Henry D'Agostino, and Robert Donovan, aided by his lieutenant, Charles Zahn.

Among the other members were several of the football team and baseball team.

In order to be on the Patrol, a coveted position, a boy must be a senior in good standing, capable of leading and directing other boys.

His job is not an easy one, but with such cooperation as was had from this year's classes, it is made much easier.

Donald Foley

BRIGHTON HIGH STUDENT COUNCIL

The year 1940-1941 saw a major step in the progress of the Student Government of Brighton High School. Since its beginning, the Council movement in this school has always been carried on by two separate organizations the Girls' Council and the Boys' Council. However, this year has seen the joining of these organizations into the Student Council. This step was taken to insure better cooperation and better results and benefits for the Student Body.

The officers, who were elected at the beginning of the year, are: Robert Donovan, President; Clifford Cassidy, Vice-President; Marjorie Martin, Secretary; Salvatore Anzaldi, Treasurer.

Under the careful supervision of our cooperative sponsors, Miss Wilson and Mr. Fuller, the Council conducted many successful socials which were held for the Student Body.

Robert Donovan, President

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Helen Gedrim	President
Betty Baltozer	Vice-President
Stella Houhoulis	Secretary
Marguerite Pitts	Treasurer

The Home Economics Club is limited to those taking Dressmaking Foods, and Salesmanship.

The aim of the Club is to help develop a girl's character, improve her personality and to enrich her leisure time, through the various field trips, parties and entertainments.

The Club is under the direction of Miss Sylvester. The girls are very cooperative and therefore a great deal is accomplished during the meetings.

One of the most interesting field trips was a trip to the Red Cross Rooms. There we were shown the type of work the American Red Cross is doing. Many of the girls took yarn home with them to make afghans and sweaters in their spare time.

We hope that next year's club will be as successful as ours has been.

Helen Gedrim, President

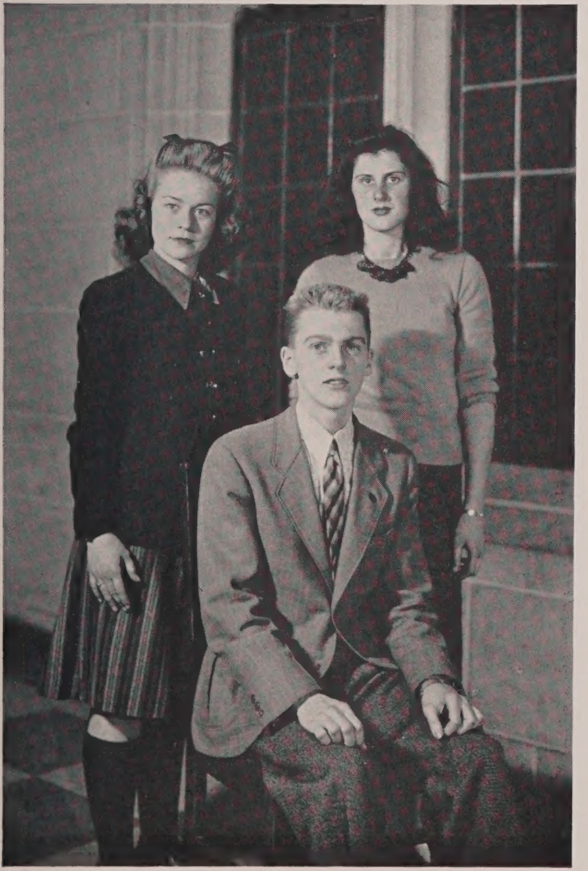
THE MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

The music appreciation club, under the able leadership of one of the musical members of the faculty, Miss Miller, strives to give its members a keener appreciation of modern and classical music. Meeting once a month doesn't give the members much opportunity to hear this music, for the time is limited. However, at these brief meetings we get a chance to hear our talented members, and we are glad to say that this year there are quite a number. Other members are generous enough to give records so that we may hear the masters of violin, cello, and piano. Since few of us go to symphony, we can thus hear superb symphonic music which we have previously heard at school on records. The large following of the club shows the high interest of the members in the work.

M. Miller



THE ART CLUB

The elections of the art club for 1941 were held early in the year and the results were as follows:

President	Edward Winn
Vice-President	Marjorie Kane
Secretary	Marilyn Evelyn

Under the competent supervision of our two most capable faculty members, Miss Glennon and Miss Laughlin, both graduates of the Massachusetts School of Art, the members enjoyed a most successful year.

Considerable talent was revealed in sculpturing and in the making of posters, for all our school activities which were varied and numerous. Discussions and talks were given by our faculty advisers on art appreciation and various forms of art. The visits to the famous art centers of Boston, as well as exhibitions, proved to be very interesting to all those who attended.

And now we extend to the art club of 1942, and those thereafter, all possible success. We thank Miss Glennon and Miss Laughlin for their tireless efforts in our behalf which we certainly have appreciated.

Edward Winn, President

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

The officers of the Club are:

President	Myna W. Killian
Vice-President	John P. McGrath
Secretary	Sylvia Aronson
Treasurer	Muriel Gagne

This year the Dramatic Club was under the direction of Mr. McNamara.

The Dramatic Club has been specializing in speech improvement, working for clarity and force of expression. The meetings are held in room 102.

With the dues collected and the money in the treasury from previous years we hope to purchase a sound-recording machine or some records of an accomplished speaker to use as our model. If we should not succeed in accomplishing this, we hope our successors will.

MYNA W. KILLIAN, President

THE READING CLUB

The Reading Club meets in the Library on the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month to enjoy a pleasant hour both in meeting new authors and renewing acquaintances with familiar writers. Miss Bailey and Miss Marshall are its two friendly and helpful advisers. All members of the club, who are honor students in English, contribute to entertainment and refreshments. The club has special programs at Thanksgiving and Christmas. At Junior Day, outstanding members of the Junior Class are invited to a party, so that they may become acquainted with the club to which they will belong when they are seniors. The Senior Girls' Reading Club has acquired the fine combination of good nature and courtesy which makes pleasant hours even more enjoyable.

VERA CLIFTON

THE TENNIS CLUB

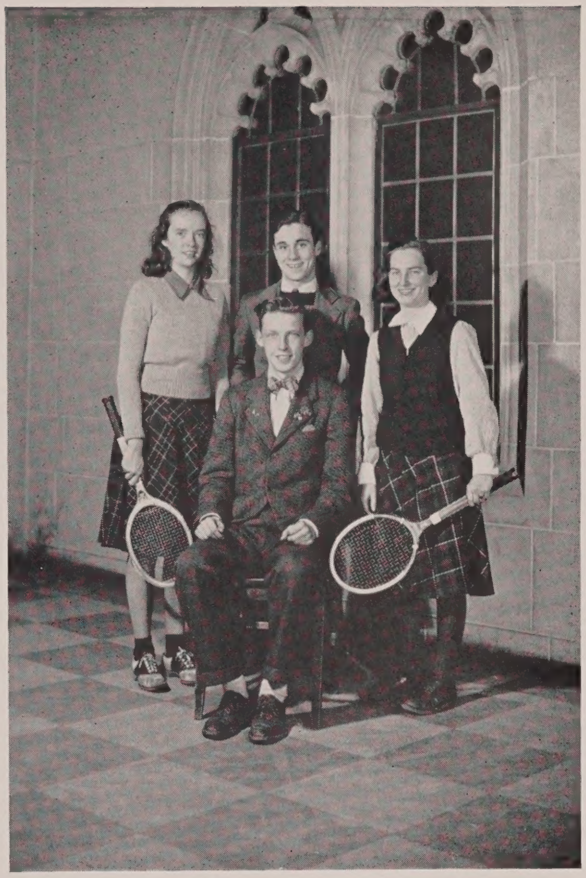
President	Kenneth Whitehead
Vice-President	Betty Arnold
Secretary	Margaret McGaffigan
Treasurer	Donald Paquette

This year the Tennis Club was inaugurated with Mr. McKenzie as its sponsor. Pupils who were interested in tennis had play-offs and from these a team was chosen. Encouragement was given to those who wanted to learn the game.

During the year matches were played with other schools.

The Tennis Club has made a very promising beginning and we hope it will continue to grow in membership in the future.

Kenneth Whitehead



THE SWIMMING CLUB

The officers are:

President	Betty Arnold
Vice-President	Helen Smith
Secretary	Euthymia Maletskos
Treasurer	Ellen Maloney

The Girls' Swimming Club which has been one of the major senior sports activities has enjoyed another successful year under the direction of Miss Wilson.

The members of this club were fortunate in having the use of Curtis Hall Pool in Jamaica Plain for their use.

They have had fun at the pool, and at the same time have received competent instruction in the various strokes and diving.

Over a period of years this has been one of the thriving clubs at B. H. S. and it is our sincere wish that it will continue to grow with each incoming senior group.

Betty Arnold, President

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial Club of the seniors of 1941, under the careful guidance of Miss Burpee, Faculty Adviser, was a success in every way.

The officers and executive committee, voted in by the girls, proved worthy of their positions. Meetings of the officers were held on Mondays to discuss the events in the program. The girls were entertained by short plays, contests showing amazing talents, all of which were presented in the library. The club also remembered the birthdays of members and celebrated them with small parties and presents for the girls.

On the day of our class election, a record hop was held in our large gymnasium, a day to be remembered always.

The girls' chief delight was bowling. This was one of the activities of the month of February. Roller-skating was another pet amusement.

The year was climaxed with a most enjoyable picnic. Thus, the delight of every member will always linger in our memories.

MARTHA MARINO, Secretary

THE ITALIAN CLUB

Another successful season has just been concluded by the Italian Club, which was first organized three years ago.

The main purpose of this popular club which is rapidly becoming one of the most popular in the school, is to stimulate interest and knowledge in the Italian Language. Music, Art, Literature—all these are included in the study of this poetic tongue.

An enjoyable time was had by all at the various meetings held throughout the year. Members participated in the entertainment at these gatherings and refreshments were served.

On behalf of the members and myself, I wish to express my appreciation to all who helped to make the club such a success this year. Also to Mr. Sobell, who was kind enough to supervise our meetings. To our successors I say, "Carry on the good work."

FRED TENAGLIA, President

THE GERMAN CLUB

The "Deutscher Verein" completed another successful year under the competent guidance of Mr. Sobell, our German Instructor.

The officers elected for the year 1940-1941 were:

President	Elmer G. Guilmartin
Vice-President	Mary Woodward
Secretary	Margaret McGaffigan
Treasurer	Richard Souza

The highlight of the year was the Christmas meeting when the club enjoyed a talk about the Gymnasium in Germany in comparison with our high school. Afterwards there were songs and refreshments.

We wish future members as successful a year as we have had, and we hope that they will keep the prestige of the "Deutscher Verein" as high as ever.

Elmer Guilmartin, President

THE FRENCH CLUB

President	Mary Frances Zetrouer
Vice-President	Paul Keyes
Secretary	Faith Mason
Treasurer	Mary E. Woodward

Executive Committee

Jeannette Solomon, Antonette Mazzola, Miriam Tuton, Nazarino Mazzola, Albert Mahfuz.

Time: Every 4th Thursday at 2:30
Place: Library
Occasion: French Club meeting

The French Club had a very successful year under the expert guidance of Miss Cummings its sponsor.

The most enjoyable meetings were the ones devoted to La Fontaine and the Christmas Meeting. In the latter, gifts were exchanged, French Carols were sung, and games were played. French pastry, candy and ice cream were served.

Several short plays were presented during the year in which various members could show their ability to speak French.

In January the club went to the Art Museum to visit the Miniature rooms.

We all had a very happy time at our meetings and hope that Le Cercle Francais of 1942 will enjoy as successful a year as did the club of 1941.

THE BAND

The officers of the band are:

Captain	Arnold Johnson
First Lieutenant	Dustin Colby
Second Lieutenants	David Miller and Stephen Macalouski

The 1940-1941 band is one of the finest bands ever organized during the history of Brighton High School. This fine band has been made possible by the harmonious work of all its members.

The band convenes three times each week. The first day, Tuesday, is devoted to instructions, the boys with brass instruments meeting in one room while the woodwind instruments and drums meet in other rooms. The second day, Thursday, the band meets as a whole in the auditorium for rehearsal. The last day, Friday, the band reports to the gymnasium for drill and march formation.

The band has appeared several times before the entire school. It has played for the Home and School Association and has taken part in the Washington and Lincoln Day Exercises held in the auditorium. The band also participated in the Memorial Day exercises held on the terrace in front of the school. One of the major events in the band's curriculum was its participation in the Street Parade.

The band is indebted for the work of Mr. Sordilla, Assistant Director of Music in the Boston Public Schools and to Mr. Dowell, the member of the faculty in charge of the band's activities. We are also thankful for the instructions of Mr. Gardner, instructor of the drums, Mr. Patch and Mr. Donovan, instructor of the brass instruments, and Mr. Barett, instructor of the woodwind instruments.

Arnold Johnson, Captain

THE OFFICERS' CLUB

Much to our regret, the Officers' Club of B. H. S. was off to a late start this year due to the fact that our very able leader Captain Dallahan was called to active duty in the U. S. Marines.

As soon as all the draft adjustments were made in the City, the School Committee appointed Lt. Sanford as permanent drill instructor of Brighton High School. It wasn't until February 25, 1941, however, that the first meeting was held.

At this meeting, the following officers were elected:

President	James Murphy
Vice-President	Paul Bradbury
Treasurer	Daniel Rufo
Secretary	Leonard Coughlin
Sergeant-at-Arms	David Miller

In spite of these handicaps, Lt. Sanford, Miss O'Neill, and the officers, bearing in mind the three words Honor, Duty, Brighton, carried the Club through a very outstanding and successful year.

JAMES MURPHY, President

PRIZE DRILL

On Tuesday, May 6, the many long hours spent in wearily tramping back and forth, culminated in that all important event the annual Prize Drill.

The warm sun beamed down on the patriotic occasion as the boys, resplendent in their handsome uniforms, went through their manoeuvres with West Point precision. Thirteen captains struggled gamely for the coveted title of Colonel of the regiment; their respective companies likewise entered into the contest with unremitting zeal in the hope of winning first place and having the honor of wearing a red stripe. After careful consideration the judges decided on the following awards:

1st Prize—Colonel Sumner Cohen
2nd Prize—Lt. Colonel Wallace Lowell
3rd Prize—Lt. Colonel Alan Ente
4th Prize—Major James Murphy
5th Prize—Major Walter Stadtman
6th Prize—Major Myron Kelman
7th Prize—Major Paul Keyes

The marvelous musical contributions of the Band and the Drum and Bugle Corps were received with much appreciation and enthusiasm.

When Captain Dallahan left Brighton last year to become once more a part of the Service, drill was taught by four different instructors, before Lieutenant Sanford came. What he has done for us in the few months he has been here, can never be fully repaid. We salute Lieutenant Sanford, a true soldier and a real gentleman.

CLASS MOTTO

"Faber est quisque fortunae suae"

UPON OUR EXODUS

Fair Citadel of Knowledge, nobly stand
With lofty turrets challenging the sky,
And show thy growing force throughout the land,
That we may rise to pinnacles most high.
One century, thy strong, embattled flanks
Of Light and Truth have staunchly held their ground;
One hundred years have seen within thy ranks
An all increasing power most profound.
Emerging now, in triumph, here we seek
With humble hearts, to pay thee homage due,
While inwardly, each scales a chosen peak
Until the goal presents itself to view.
Spirit of Learning, reign forevermore
Provide a firm foundation for all youth
Who venture from within thy grasp to soar
And gratify the searing thirst for Truth.
Gay, fair, yet sad and agonizing day,
When we, departing, scarcely in our prime,
Go forth from out thine arms to make our way
Towards the long sought zenith of our climb!
Hail to thy future Brighton High
May youth e'er proffer faith and love to thee,
Reliant in their love do then comply
To shield and nurture our posterity.

SENIOR PLAY

Breathless suspense, eager whisperings and repetition of lines—it was February 28, the day of our Senior Play, "June Mad."

Back stage, the make-up man was feverishly making old men out of young men. Hair was quickly turned gray—not actually! Programs were being autographed. At last, up went the curtain.

"June Mad" is a comedy in three acts, written by Clements. It is the story of the transition of Penny Wood from a little girl to a young lady.

The cast included:

PENNY WOOD—Sylvia Aronson
"CHUCK" HARRIS—John McGillen
ELMER TUTTLE—Sidney Goodman
EFFIE—Alice Coyle
MRS. WOOD—Marilyn Morrison
DR. WOOD—William Jacobson
ROGER VAN VLECK—Kenneth Whitehead
MERVYN G. ROBERTS—Howard Marks
JULIE HARRIS—Betty Waterhouse
MR. HARRIS—John Williamson
MILLY LOU—Mary Frances Zetrouer

Jean Stewart, Helen Everett, Jaqueline Burns, and Stephen Berny were a big help as prompters.

After the curtain fell, the entire cast assembled on the stage to express its sincere thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Burnham, the patient and pleasant directors. The entire senior class may well express its thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Burnham in Shakespeare's immortal words, "More is thy due than more than all can pay."

MARY FRANCES ZETROUER

THE SENIOR PROMENADE

A long line of automobiles and taxis wending their way to the Hotel Bradford on the evening of May 23rd proclaimed the event of the Senior Promenade.

The ballroom was a symphony of beauty into which the rainbow-hued gowns of fair ladies blended harmoniously. Soft lights played over the kaleidoscope of colors and turned the room into a veritable fairy land.

The inviting rhythms played by Fran Melville and his orchestra set the throng to dancing, and they did this with enthusiasm. Delicious soft drinks, cake, and ice cream refreshed the crowd and afterwards they returned to dancing with new vigor. Don Schuck, the Class President, and his lovely partner, Marian Hennigan, led the Grand March which wound like a huge vari-colored serpent around the large room.

Several novelties added to the enjoyment of the evening, such as an Elimination Dance and a Moon Dance. The Medley Dance featured the season's most popular tunes.

The happy group mingled, talking and laughing, while growing reminiscent about the never-to-be-forgotten days of the year just past.

Some of the faculty lent dignity to the occasion, and enjoyed the dancing with the students. They were: Mr. Herbert T. Rich, Miss Elizabeth I. O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Looney, and Mr. Joseph Leary.

When the last strains of the farewell waltz brought the Promenade to a close, a unanimous decision proclaimed this the happiest of happy events.

To give credit for making the evening a memorable occasion, we must mention the able assistance of the Executive Committee, consisting of Marilyn Evelyn, Warren Dickson, and Daniel J. Rufo, Jr., Chairman. Particularly our sincerest gratitude is given to Mr. Fuller by the Executive Committee and by all the Senior Promenaders for guiding them through this glorious evening. They worked hard and faithfully, but were rewarded with satisfaction. Our thanks to all who helped to give us a pleasing memory to keep through the years.

CLASS DAY 1941

On the day which was to culminate our school life, Class Day, the weather was fittingly beautiful. The brilliant sun beamed down over the equally brilliant Class of 1941 on the school terrace. Here we carried out the traditional ceremonies of Class Day.

Representing the Spirit of Brighton High School, Marilyn Morrison sat in the place of honor looking down over the assembled class.

All eyes were fixed on Daniel Rufo, the Class Herald, as he stepped forward to deliver the opening address.

HERALD

I. Hear ye! Parents and comrades! We the Class of 1941 gladly welcome you on this our festive day. For three happy years Brighton High School has been our Alma Mater. Now we stand at the open door, ready to leave her sheltering walls for the great adventure of life. Ere we say a courageous "All hail" to the unknown future, we pause for a sad and grateful farewell to our loved school. Let the Representatives of the Juniors, who will so soon move forward into our places, now join the Seniors in singing "Hail, dear ALMA MATER" in tribute to Brighton High School.

II. Some among us merit especial recognition for high scholastic achievement which brings them well deserved rewards, and reflects honor on their school.

1. Let the winner of the Anna Judson George Scholarship for excellence in English (Betty R. Waterhouse) receive from the Spirit of her Alma Mater the symbol of her victory.

2. Let the winners of the Brighthelmstone Club Scholarships (Richard W. Souza, Rosemarie Dell'Elce and Robert G. Donovan) receive the meed of their intellectual conquests from the Spirit of Brighton High School.

3. Let the Senior and Junior Honor students unite in placing the laurels of their attainments at the feet of their Alma Mater.

To these two let there be joined one from our College Course (Mary Frances Zetrouer) that together all three may show honor to Brighton High School, and receive the medals which shall memorialize their high standing as scholars in whom Alma Mater may justly take pride.

III. Ere we move out into the ranks of the Alumni, we transmit to our successors certain privileges and responsibilities which we have held gladly and faithfully during our Senior year. We relinquish these offices to our Junior comrades with the hope that they may regard them as opportunities for serving their school, and, in filling them, add fresh glories to the name of Brighton High School.

1. Let the President of the Senior Class (Donald J. Schuck) invest the President of the Junior Class (Robert Currie) with the insignia of his office.

2. Let the President of the Student Council (Robert G. Donovan) transmit to his Junior officer (Clifford Cassidy) the symbol of his authority.

3. Let the Editor of the "Imp" (Betty R. Waterhouse) pass on to her successor (Edith Kraemer) the tokens of her high office.

IV. Now shall the Chief Marshal (Kenneth G. Whitehead) escort into the presence of the Spirit, our Head Master (Mr. Rich) that he may there receive, as a perpetual memorial to the Class of 1941, the gift of our Year Book.

V. Let our Head Master now present to the Spirit of Brighton High School the medal which shall ever be to her a memento of this most felicitous occasion.

VI. The Spirit shall here bestow upon the Herald a token emblematic of his place of honor in this ceremony.

VII. Let the Chief Marshal now receive from his Alma Mater a medal which shall keep in his remembrance this eventful day.

VIII. Let the Seniors now transmit to the Juniors the guardianship of the National Colors.

IX. Let the Seniors now march forth to dedicate the Class Tree which, as its spreading branches add beauty to the noble terraces of their Alma Mater, shall become an ever glorious and living symbol of the enduring loyalty of the Class of 1941 to Brighton High School.

TREE ORATION, CLASS OF '41

We, the Class of 1941, are met here today to dedicate this tree as a living memorial of love and respect for our Alma Mater. As the roots of our tree grow strong and sturdy, so may our lives grow in power and personal achievement. As its branches extend toward the heavens, so may the hearts and souls, and minds of each member of this class reach ever outward and upward, grasping always truth and beauty, inspiration and knowledge. As we give this tree a permanent place in the earth, so too, let us instill in our hearts a deep, abiding loyalty and devotion to the Brighton High School.

And now, on its one hundredth anniversary, our school is urging us to seize every opportunity for our future success, and to be mindful of our Class Motto, that every man is the maker of his own destiny.

WALTER E. STADTMAN, Tree Orator

X. Let the class Marshals under the leadership of the Chief Marshal step forward to conduct the Class of 1941 into the Auditorium for the final exercises of this memorable Class Day.

THE CLASS OUTING—1941

" 'Tis June, 'tis June," June the month of roses. June the month of memories. June with its sunshine, its warmth, its gayety and laughter. Not the least of the happy June days is June 11, the day of the class outing.

Early shoppers from Brighton mixed with eager high school pupils on their way through to the city, to the class outing, held at Nantasket. Jokes, songs, and festive spirits were the order of the day as we wished the street car would go faster. We scrambled across Rowe's Wharf, and impatiently awaited the boat's departure.

Perhaps in the days to come, the trip on the boat will be best remembered. Those who were regular sea-dogs strode fearlessly up to the top deck to find their places in the sun. Camera fiends seemed to sneak up at the most inopportune moments. Little groups, those unfortunates who could not find chairs, stood at the rail viewing the wide expanse of sea and chatting gaily of the class day that had passed, the outing that was, and the graduation that was to come.

Sounds of music floated up from the lower deck, where boys and girls swaying to smooth syncopation changed into expert and not so expert jitterbugs. The rolling of the boat affected their activity very little.

At last we docked. A few ambitious creatures ran almost all the way to Ocean Gardens. Others, less ambitious, took their time, inhaling the soft sea breezes. After rushing around to find tables, the business of eating began. Those who had not had enough dancing on the boat took this opportunity to get in the groove once more. Those who could not decide whether to eat or dance did both at once. One hand held a partner; the other a sandwich.

The bowling alleys were the next stop. Boasts were made. Some were fulfilled; some were not. Naturally it was the ball's fault, not the bowler's, if the pins remained in an upright position.

A game on the beach followed. The faculty proved to be adept at wielding the "ole" baseball bat. Balls flew through the air, landed with a dull thud in a catcher's mitt, and put out either a student or a teacher.

A swim was definitely needed after such strenuous exercise. The water was not any too warm but the cold water helped to make the plunge more exciting.

At length, the crowd moved on to Paragon Park. Should we ride on the merry-go-round or the roller coaster first? We decided to save the roller coaster until the last, since it would be the best of all. We had fun crashing into each other in our little cars. The airplane rides were enjoyed by everyone. Many bruises had to be nursed after the slides in the fun house. Finally the roller coaster we had been anticipating all along. With what screams we crashed down into the darkness. How tightly we held on to that rod. What a ride!

Slightly out of breath, we proceeded on to the roller skating rink. The smooth floor and fast music invited us to secure our skates quickly. Then off we went, round and round.

After an hour or so, we turned in our skates, and started down the boardwalk, to get a table for supper. Lunch boxes were again brought forth. Jokes and funny stories of the day's pleasures traveled from table to table.

The sun got lower and lower. It was time to go back to the boat. The soft lapping of the water against the side of the boat lulled a few weary ones to sleep. It was only for a short snooze, though, because not one moment of an eventful day could be missed.

The boat docked again and we went home to dream of the happy, never-to-be-forgotten 1941 class outing.

MARY FRANCES ZETROUER

THE CLASS ORATION OF 1941

Mr. Rich, members of the faculty, friends, and especially my fellow students:

We, the Class of 1941, have the honor and privilege of being the one-hundredth class to graduate from Brighton High School. On this one-hundredth anniversary of the founding of our own Brighton High School, my fancy travels back over the period of time which has intervened between the initial class of Brighton High School and our own class of 1941. Perhaps you, too, have considered the vast differences between the world that existed in 1841 and the world now existing.

I am sure that all of us assembled here, graduates and friends alike, have a general conception of the America of 1841. It is one of the immediate benefits of our education that our course in U. S. History in the Brighton High School enables us to view this era more clearly and, perhaps, apply its lessons to our own problems. In order that we may more definitely appreciate the problems of this class of 1841, let us consider for a moment the condition of the country into which those students were being graduated. As you know, the 1849's opened with a depression, this graduating class had the feeling that there were dark days ahead for them. They were determined, however, that this depression would not adversely affect their lives, that because of their courage, their dauntless spirit, and their devotion to the ideals on which their country was founded, they would soon make their difficulties a thing of the past. And they were right. Because of their refusal to go down in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles, this depression was short-lived and the period immediately following was one of great material prosperity. History records, among the great achievements of this era, the application of machinery to agriculture, the rapid development of the West, the discovery of gold in California, the extension of railroads, the expansion of our foreign commerce, and the enormous growth of manufactures. Not only did that generation improve economic and financial conditions, but they built up a unity of spirit which carried them successfully through two critical wars, the first with Mexico, caused by our annexation of Texas in 1848; the second, a war caused by the dispute over slavery, the seeds of which were discernible, even as early as 1841.

We have much in common with this class of 1841 in that they, too, must have felt discouragement as they were graduating into a country ravaged by depression. We must follow their example, however, by facing what is before us with a knowledge that if we possess courage, tolerance, and devotion to our ideals, we shall not falter; and we, as intelligent, patriotic, and fearless citizens of the United States, will be able to unravel the tangled threads of our country's difficulties in a manner that will bring honor and credit to our generation.

This class of 1841 had the advantage, however, of living at a time when their interests were not threatened by forces beyond our own hemisphere,—of living at a time when the development of the United States as a democratic nation was their foremost ambition. Our country today, however, is meeting new problems because of the trend toward ever-widening horizons. In some cases, the spirit of today differs from that of 1841, in that our population includes some citizens whose loyalties, in spite of our great Melting Pot, are still somewhat divided.

Their first loyalty, of course, is to our own great nation, but either through a misconception of the problems facing us, or in rare cases, from an unworthy failure in their sense of duty to our own beneficent land, there is a danger that their interests lie too closely with those of some foreign nation.

We, Brighton High School's one-hundredth graduating class, are in very grave danger of having our own United States, not severed this time within itself, but threatened with the loss of its identity and the forfeiture of the principles of democracy for which we originally warred. Why? Because of those fellow-citizens whose concern is not with their own wonderful country, the United States of America, but with European countries whose problems, so alien to our own, are of their own making,—resulting sometimes from greed, lust for power, intolerance, and internal corruption.

Do we, the Class of 1941, intend to stand by and see the interests of this country, so dear to us, jeopardized by such misguided or self-interested groups? Or are we, as the class of 1841 was before us, determined to make patriotism and love for American ideals our most salient qualities? Perhaps you are rather dubious of your ability to effect any changes in the minds and hearts of the American citizens, not our steel magnates, our big bankers, or any other prominent wealthy person today, who will redeem the nation. We are the population of tomorrow. It is our privilege and our duty to make ourselves heard, that we may hand on to future generations a country that is a true democracy, and what is most essential, a democracy of peace.

It is for us, the younger generation, to be alert to the crisis now before us. We have so often been called "a lost generation" because of the last World War, its resulting depression, terrible lack of employment, consequent rise of gangsters, racketeers, and other evil influences. But we are not afraid. We can and will bring about those reforms which will prevent our children from facing such serious problems as confront us today. Let us today resolve to hand on to the lower classes of Brighton High School happier days for their graduation and Class Day exercises, days when our country will not be burdened with fear of imminent war. Let us be ready to do our part in building up a strong nation, founded on those high principles which make our country, even in these crucial days, the hope of all Democracy-loving people.

That class of 1841 could tell us that only by so doing can we keep our United States free and independent for our posterity. Let us remember the words of one of our greatest Presidents, Abraham Lincoln, and keep this country, a democracy, "a government of the people, by the people, and for the people" of our own land.

Let us take away from Brighton High School not only the fond memories of three happy years, but also the realization that nowhere else in the world does our class motto, "Every man is the maker of his own fortune," hold true. Although the problems facing us today are many and serious, we have a precious heritage, treasures through the years that will make us strong in the face of difficulties, calm in face of hysteria and intolerance, and confident of eventual triumph over all obstacles. Our heritage insures to each of us equal opportunities for "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," a heritage which we would lay down our lives to preserve. In America more than anywhere else on this earth, regardless of race, nationality, or religion, these ideals are still cherished, and success depends only upon a man's own ability and initiative. God grant that we may ever keep it so!

CLASS HISTORY

We, the Class of 1941, the one hundredth graduating class of Brighton High School, were literally whisked into the educational realms of our high school studies by a slight breeze, that famous hurricane of 1938.

Entering into our new field of education with the processes of delving, exploring, and conquering still before us, we rapidly became assimilated and felt ourselves members of this huge but happy family, our student body.

Unfortunately, however, we suffered in the loss of our very genial and much loved athletic coach, Mr. Scanlon, whose untimely death resulted from a tragic accident. For many years he had served as an example and inspiration to the students and we were greatly disappointed to lose him almost as soon as we had met him.

The task of coaching our athletically-minded students was taken over by our own energetic Mr. Murphy.

True talent can never be hidden for long, and our class was no exception to this general rule. The performance of one of the most enjoyable and entertaining revues of the decade, labeled the "1938 Varieties," presented to the gaping upper classmen such stars as Vera Clifton, Charles Perelli, and Daniel Rufo.

Peeking into the past pages of our fashion book, we take notice of a liking for gabardine sport coats. Right along in style as usual we saw Marilyn Evelyn and Jo Ann McGrath proudly displaying theirs with many other Brightonites.

The superb acting and able showmanship of the graduating class rivaled Hollywood's finest, in the production of the prize-winning play "You Can't Take It With You."

The long-anticipated rest from our studies arrived none too soon. Enthusiastically chanting that classic refrain beginning "No more pencils, no more books," we turned from mental strain to physical relaxation.

All good things must come to an end. It seemed as though a day only had passed when we found ourselves reluctantly, yet gladly, climbing the stairs to our "Castle on the Hill."

There a great disappointment awaited us. Mr. McInerney had been transferred to another school as head of the English Department. We were, however, fortunate in obtaining both Miss Hurley and Mr. McNamara to guide us along the steps of learning.

What fun we had cheering the members of our class who were on our undefeated football team under the able guidance of Coach Murphy! Our football enthusiasts, Anne Farrell, Louise Dobbin, the Moore sisters, Kay Hurley, and so many others, we feel sure were partly responsible for the team's success.

Before we knew it, brightly colored posters flashed on our bulletin boards telling us that junior elections were well under way. The results obtained were as follows: President, Robert Donovan; Vice-President, David Miller; Secretary-Treasurer, John P. McGrath.

Styles this year were rather variable although Helen Everett and Saima Laycock seemed rather decided in wearing long sweaters, short skirts, and skin tight knee socks that just wouldn't stay up. Such were the fashion whims of us Brighton High girls.

We thrilled at the senior class production of "Growing Pains" and eagerly awaited our turn to show the world our super acting abilities when we should take part in our own senior play.

Because we now were juniors, we were given the privilege of attending the Nantasket Beach outing. What fun we had mingling with the seniors who really made a day of it, and what jollity we had on the boat coming home!

The distinguished members of our honor roll and other class notables including Robert Donovan, President of the Boys' Council; Marjorie Martin, President of the Girls' Council; Betty Waterhouse, Editor-in-Chief of "The Imp," to name only a few, took part in the Class Day program for the class of 1940, thus bringing to an end our junior year at Brighton.

Again entering our Alma Mater, we quickly and eagerly started to work, the most specific reason being to show the new recruits, who seemed so awkward and childish, our higher position and authority.

Sadness filled the hearts of many upon hearing of the death of our beloved Mrs. Chadbourne. Always an example to the students of loyalty, determination, and nobility, she will ever remain in their memory.

Our football season started and ended with a tremendous boom!! Paul Bradbury, our over-ambitious blond captain, started the show by leading our faithful and co-operative members of the team to an undefeated season. For a while the results seemed doubtful; but after witnessing the South Boston-Brighton game, we felt sure in our hearts there was no high school team we couldn't take on. A few members of our team, such as Jim Murphy, a blue blood by his ancestry (he claims) ; Leonard Coughlin, a very quiet chap; George Greene, the ladies' choice, and others not mentioned in this history, proved only too well what full co-operation with our ever popular coach, Mr. Murphy, can and did do when they were pronounced winners of the District Championship of Boston.

Miss Frankie Sullivan, our well known and loved English teacher, made her departure from our midst, retiring from many years of inspired teaching in Brighton High School. In her place we were grateful to have Miss Lyons take over.

Time was flying, and before we knew it we were sitting and enjoying that stupendous, colossal, senior play, "June Mad," directed by Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Burnham, our dramatic coaches. From this play hidden talent crept out into the limelight. Sylvia Aronson, Betty Waterhouse, Kenneth Whitehead, John McGillen, and Howard Marks were outstanding. The comedy duo, Red Goodman and Alice Coyle, kept us rolling in the aisles during the full performance of our show. Surely, both Hollywood and the legitimate stage will benefit in the future by recruiting some of these Thespians.

Again the promises of candidates echoed through our corridor announcing that senior elections were soon to come. We were fortunate in finding the following people elected to office: President, Donald Schuck; Vice-President, David Miller; Secretary, Catherine Hurley; Treasurer, Charles Perelli; Class Orator, Patricia Sullivan; Executive Committee, Marilyn Evelyn, Daniel Rufo, Warren Dickson; Herald, Daniel Rufo; Spirit of Brighton High School, Marilyn Morrison; Chief Marshal, Kenneth Whitehead; Marshals, Salvatore Anzaldi, Edward Greeley, Dustin Colby, Martin Podren, Evelyn Bradbury, Marjorie Kane, Lorraine Robsham, Mary Woodward.

Again we found ourselves saddened by death. Mr. Gill, gentle and helpful adviser to the boys in the co-operative course, will always be remembered for his kindness and generosity. Miss Barnes, too, answered the grim call. For twenty-three years a teacher at Brighton High School, she will be greatly missed. Her gracious charm and kindly winning ways will ever linger in our memories.

April fools' day came, and with it we found many of our fellow classmates rigged up as babies and tramps. Betty Walton, Mary Cook, and Marjorie Kane walked away with the lollypops in their knee-length dresses and big bows, while Paul Bradbury and Jack Donahue stole honors for their realistic impersonation as tramps.

We'll always remember dancing in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Bradford the night of our Senior Prom. The lilting tunes of the orchestra, the pastel shades of evening gowns, and the soft lights of the ballroom will linger long in our minds, effacing the memory of stiff collars, aching feet, and tired muscles.

The class outing found us again enjoying both the sea breezes at Nantasket Beach and the many amusements at Paragon Park. Tired, but happy, we returned to Brighton, sadly realizing that another highlight of our senior year was now in the limbo of the past.

Today, June 10, attired in dazzling gowns or white flannels, we march in the Class Day procession with tears in our eyes at the thought of how soon we shall leave all this behind us. June 13, alas, will come all too soon. Then we shall leave our Alma Mater to march forward and to conquer the new worlds which lie before us. Wherever or however we go, we will always remember with joy the three memorable years we spent at Brighton High School.

TRACK TEAM

Brighton High's first taste of victory was at the Northeastern Meet January 25, 1941, when the two lap relay team won medals. The boys in running order were: Dustin Colby, Clifford Cassidy, John Thomson, and Chandler White. All boys did a fine 320 yards each.

In the District Meet, March 8, Class A, Steve Macalouski took a third in the 300 yard run. He is also an outstanding football player. Chandler White took a fourth in the 600 yard run.

In Class D Alfred Colby, who has been outstanding from the beginning of the year, took first in the 50 yard dash, and Leon Granahan captured the 176 yard run.

The outstanding Brighton relay team of the day was that of Class B, which in running order is: Dustin Colby, Fred Tanaglia, Leonard Cibley and George McHugh.

Another outstanding relay team is the two lap relay which took second in the Districts and fourth in the "Reggies" meaning fourth best two lap relay team in the city of Boston. In running order: Fred Doherty, Dick McHugh, John Thomson, and Chandler White.

This year has been a good year in comparison to other years. Many boys will be back next year, including Coburn Graves, Joseph Aldonis, Alfred Colby, Zaven Chutchian, Newton and many others.

Donald Schuck, our class President, and Carl Du Rubeis, next year's football captain, were our hard working track managers both this year and last year.

In closing of our successful centennial year I thank the trackmen and wish next year's team equal success.

Chandler White

HOCKEY

When the fall rolled around, it made a number of boys happy, because this was the sign of hockey.

Practice was called shortly after football. The turnout was great, in spite of the fact that there were only three veterans. They were Captain Daniel Rufo, John Griffith, and David Miller.

As soon as these two teams were organized and equipped, the team adopted two mottoes which were "Team Play" and "Team Work."

Orange and Black defeated Roslindale in the opening game. In the second game, due to a little letup, South Boston scored. As soon as they scored they were so surprised that all they did was ice the puck the rest of the game, which of course didn't give B. H. S. a chance in a million. So she took her one and only bow. Burnt up with anger, the team came to life and continued to play winning hockey the remainder of the season.

The success of the team was due to the squad, the captain, the coach and the two mottoes "Team Play" and "Team Work."

SCORES

FOOTBALL TEAM

The City-District Champions of Boston—1940

On the opening day of school one hundred twenty-five candidates reported for the first practice session under the able guidance of Coach William Murphy. Despite the fact that only two veterans were returning, the prospects looked very promising.

The first game was won by Brighton, by the score of 7 to 0. It was the third Hyde Park defeat in three starts and Brighton's first win of the season.

Roslindale was next in line and Brighton really rolled with a score of 20 to 0, and added another victory to its credit.

Our next opponents were the invincible South Boston team who were the leading contenders for the District Championship Title, and were the very heavy favorites to win over us. With very good teamwork and spirit we beat the, what seemed, unbeatable eleven, 13 to 12. This game was the best ever played by any high school team at National League Field.

We finished the season with a very good score, winning the District and City Championships to end the best year in Brighton High football history.

Bradbury and Schettino were picked on the Boston Post All-Boston Team. Bradbury was also picked for every paper and captained more all-Scholastic teams than any other boy in Massachusetts. He also received a trophy for the outstanding player in the Boston ranks.

Paul Bradbury

BASEBALL

As the Castle on the Hill celebrated its first centennial, the Brighton High baseball team swung into action on April 21 with two veteran first basemen, Captain James Murphy at third base, and "Bucka" Kidik at the half-way mark. The rest of the team consisted of George Greene, Donald Schuck, Richard Martin, Leonard O'Keefe, Thomas Capisto, and John Galey. Our capable pitching staff consisted of Bob Holland, Paul Bradbury, Vincent Dunn, and Alan Morse. These players took care of the mound duties.

Working under the handicap of having inexperienced players, the Brighton High spirited ball club won its first three games with Trade, Commerce, and Charlestown High Schools.

With this splendid start, Brighton is due for a victorious season and each and every one of us hopes to bring to the Castle on the Hill the coveted City Championship.

James J. Murphy, Captain

CHEER LEADERS

The Cheer Leaders this year were Kay Hurley, Marilyn Morrison, Eleanor Hinckley, and Elizabeth Zahka.

We were all very busy. With the District Champions of 1939 to cheer for, new cheers were needed; and lots of publicity had to be given to all games.

This year we were rewarded with a full page in the Sunday Post Pictorial Section, of the girls and a few of the boys who were such a help to us.

The success of the team is well known and so is the great success of the Cheer Leaders who so ably cheered their deserving classmates to victory.

The year was climaxed with a City Championship for the football team, a great answer to the cheers of the girls.

May next year be the same!

THE VERBAL PAST

PART I

BRIGHTON HIGH SCHOOL 1930-1941

(Miss Jacqueline Strogoff in contemporary costume).

"Yes, yes, I'm coming, Helen. You don't have to shout so. If you didn't have that radio on so loud, you wouldn't have to yell. What's that? You've just learned that today we celebrate the hundredth anniversary of Brighton High School!

"Yes, Tommy,—'centennial' is a good word. I'm so glad to find your vocabulary improving. Now, Charles, you do see that it pays to read a book occasionally. And—now that I'm here, what was it you wanted me for?

"To tell you about Brighton High School!!? But—you go there. Oh, I'm older—am I? Not too old,—why, thank you, Charles—I'm sure you'll become a gentleman if not a scholar.

"Well—if you'll turn that radio off and promise not to interrupt too much, I'll tell you what I can about the 'Castle on the Hill.'

"You what? You want to know the entire history of Brighton High? But, my goodness, Helen—don't you think that's a pretty large order. However—here's what I will do. I'll tell you what I can recall from 1930 to the present. And then I'll see if Auntie won't tell you about the old school across the street—surely you knew that the Taft School was formerly Brighton High. I'm quite sure Auntie will recall those days. And if I can persuade your great-uncle—and I think I can—he'll tell you about the first school—it's torn down now—the one that started 100 years ago on Academy Hill. But you'll have to promise to be quiet.

"Now let's see. What would you like to know? Naturally, I don't have to tell you how fortunate you are to be attending one of the finest High Schools in the country—and certainly one of the most beautiful.

"Of course, you three are sophomores—so you can't imagine there being any changes since 1930. I'm sure, for example, that you have no idea of the number of rooms that have had to be added. You have all passed rooms 208 and 214 without ever realizing that they were once large study halls, seating 100 pupils each. But as the number of pupils increased those rooms had to be split up to make two additional rooms. I'll wager you never guessed that 221, 227, 321, and 327 used to be part of the locker rooms. That's why there are lockers along the corridors now.

"When the new school opened in 1930, there was a great surge of interest in extracurricular activities. The Reading Club, for those interested in good literature and creative writing, started then. In the beginning, it was a small group, but now it has 50 to 60 members. Let me remind you that it is only open to Seniors with an Honor mark in Junior English. That same year, the Stamp Club was organized, and a good many of its members learned, without knowing it, a good deal of geography and history.

"What's that, Helen? The Class Day exercises on the terrace? I'm glad you asked about that, for it was in 1931—just ten years ago—that that beautiful ceremony, with its impressive pageantry was inaugurated. About the same time, Miss Smith, then Head of the History Department, and Mr. Gildea wrote the words and music for 'Hail, dear Alma Mater'—which has been sung at Graduation and Class Day ever since.

"It was a year later that the snappy and oh-so-popular musical shows began. Some of the dancing would have made Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell sit up and take notice. Then, too, from time to time, the pupils put on some really splendid operettas—the last was a Gilbert and Sullivan.

"Now, 1934 was a memorable year. It was the first year in a long, long time that the Senior Class President was a girl. What's that, Charles? Maybe there were no good-looking boys? Of course, there were always good-looking boys in Brighton High School.

"Do I know how many clubs we have had at the school? Why—what a question, Tommy. Of course I do. At least I think I do. Now—let me see—the Art Club, the Reading Club—but I've already mentioned that one—the Commercial Club, the Math Club, the French, German, and Italian clubs, a Music Appreciation Club, a Camera Club, a Tennis Club, a Dramatic Club, a Home Economics Club, and a Swimming Club—to say nothing of a boys' and girls' Council.

"And now I've run out of breath—but I'm not sure I've run out of clubs. Oh, by the way, Tommy, I'm sure you're acquainted with at least one involuntary club. What do I mean by that? Don't put on that look of injured innocence, Tommy. You can't tell me you haven't heard of the Detention Club.

"Oh, so you're trying to change the subject. You, of all people, suddenly asking for statistics. Well, since you're so much concerned about the growth of the School, I'll tell you something that may come as a surprise. In 1930, we had a graduating class of 206— and ten years later, in 1940, there were 416.

"You're quite right, Helen. It would have been much more natural if he had asked me about the football team. Now, I don't pretend to know much about that sport, but I do recall that Brighton High School has carried off the district championship for the past two seasons.

"In fact, there are even signs that the co-educational system is beginning to make the boys aware of the finer things of life. You don't have to glare at me like that, Charles. I'm simply trying to call your attention to recent popular innovations at the High School. What is it? Why, Tommy, I thought you knew that for the past two years there had been a class in cooking for the boys!

"But, look, here's Auntie now. She'll tell you much better than I could about the earlier days of the school."

PART II

BRIGHTON HIGH SCHOOL 1897-1930

(Miss Ruth Opper in very late Victorian costume).

"Well, of all things. To think that you three jitterbugs should be curious about the history of your school. And you don't need to eye me like that, Tommy. I know exactly what you're thinking. You're quite pleased with yourself after what you've heard about your 'Castle on the Hill.' I'm not the one to say it isn't a fine-looking building, but you mustn't forget that right across the street is a red brick building—which, to you, simply means the Taft School—but for my generation it has a host of tender memories. Why, I can even recall what it was like before our school was erected. I know it will be difficult for you to picture the scene, but, at one time, there was a pleasant meadow there—with a small, winding brook which was shaded by giant oak trees. For some years, after the school was erected, there was a large apple orchard in the rear. You needn't grin, Charles. Our boys would never think of such a thing. Only very young children molest apple orchards.

"You may think that the Taft School doesn't compare with your 'Castle,' but please don't forget that it was Brighton High School for 33 years—from 1897 to 1930.

"I've often wondered—now don't interrupt, Helen,—just what anyone of you would do—if you were asked to give the names of the teachers in Brighton High School? You might be able to recall the names of as many as twenty or twenty-five. Now, in my day, that would have been an easy question. When the new building opened in 1897—there were 7 teachers. The new Headmaster, Mr. John Charles Ryder, Mr. Wormelle, Miss Curtis, Miss Critchett, Miss Hawes, Miss Allen, and Miss Smith. Perhaps the first graduating class only did have 46 pupils—but I knew all of them. I'm sure that's more than you'll be able to say when you graduate.

"Now, I wouldn't for a moment say that your annual Senior Play isn't a fine affair—but you should have been present at our Longfellow Festival in 1897. I can scarcely recall all the students that took part in it—but there were a great many—and it was a wonderful celebration. The costumes were magnificent and we represented many of the characters in Longfellow's poems. The singing, the recitations, and the dramatic scenes are still as fresh in my memory as if it had happened only yesterday.

"Naturally, you're quite pleased with your school magazine—The Imp. But please don't forget that we founded that paper in 1899. So when you think of me as an old fogey—now don't look embarrassed, I suppose I am—try to remember that we had initiative in those days, too.

"But 1899 was not an entirely happy year for Brighton High School, for we lost our beloved Headmaster, Mr. Ryder, who died of apoplexy.

"We also suffered some casualties from among our alumni in the Spanish-American War. And if you have any doubt, which I am sure you haven't, about the role our graduates have played in the history of our country—just look some day—it won't take a minute—at the pictures on the wall of the passage near the main door of your new building. After you have scanned the list of names of our boys who fought in the World War, you might stand for a moment in silent tribute—and let your glance rest on the statue of Alma Mater who has fostered such brave men.

"Our next Headmaster, Mr. Frederic Tupper, came to us from Quincy High School, and liked Brighton so well that he served our school for 29 years.

"One of Mr. Tupper's first declarations was that he intended to make every effort to gain greater scholastic recognition for our school. He did, too. For it was only five years later that Brighton High School was placed on the list of certified schools by the College Entrance Examination Board. You needn't smirk, Helen. I realize perfectly well that we still hold that distinction.

"Now you have no cause to look so bored, Charles. But just to take that vacant look off your face—I might mention that in 1899, Mr. Tupper organized track and football teams. Indeed, the following year the football team was so successful that the Headmaster rewarded the boys with a banquet at the Hotel Bellevue.

"No, Helen, the girls weren't neglected entirely—they had a basketball team.

"But our school was good in other things besides sports, for it was at the turn of the century that Brighton High displayed the calibre of its students—when, in public debate with Boston Latin School—we won.

"Nor was our school slow to recognize the need for training in Commercial subjects, and by 1903 we had courses in Bookkeeping and Shorthand.

"This same year—I realize it isn't important, but I mention it to please you, Charles—Brighton High School's football team went through the season undefeated.

"Who was coach? Why, I thought you knew, Charles. You didn't Well, I never! It was Mr. Peterson, of course. I thought that everyone knew that Mr. Peterson coached our athletic teams from 1902 to 1910. What's more—Mr. Peterson knew how to handle athletes. Any boy that felt too bumptious got picked up by the collar, and held out at arm's length—his feet dangling in the empty air. It was quite an experience from what I've heard. But if you want any more information about Mr. Peterson's skill as coach, all you have to do is ask Mr. Murphy, our present coach—who graduated in 1911. He'll tell you.

"And while I happen to think of it—it was Mr. Peterson who designed our School banner.

"It was in 1910 that the Brighthelmstone Club established a scholarship fund for the school that has helped many of our graduates defray much of their College expenses.

"Indeed, Brighton in 1911 was a veritable mecca of education—we had the Superintendent of Boston Schools and 3 Assistant-Superintendents living here.

"From this time on, there was a steady growth in the number of pupils coming to Brighton High School. Not only was our school preparing its graduates for College and the business world, but in 1918 we added a department of Auto-Mechanics, and 4 years later, portables had to be erected to house the increasing enrollment.

"Stop that gnawing on your thumb, Tommy. What do you recall about the year 1920? Nothing. I thought so. Well, that year we were district champions in football. And what famous 4 letter athlete graduated in 1923? You tell me Charles. Lands sake, for once you're right, Charles. It was Joe McKenney—later to be coach of the B. C. Football team, and now Associate-Director of Physical Education in Boston Schools.

"The next year, 1924, Brighton High School showed that it was keeping abreast of the times—for an Imp show called 'The Boomerang' was 'put on the air' from station WNAC.

"A year later saw the beginning of the Girls' Council— a strong force for the good of the School ever since.

"In 1928 Mr. Tupper retired after serving 29 years as Headmaster. Under his effective leadership, the school had grown in numbers and reputation. In 1900, there had been 64 in the graduating class; in 1928, there were 173. That's right, Helen, almost three times as many.

"Mr. Tupper was succeeded by—you don't need to nod your head so vehemently, Charles—I expected you to know that— our present beloved Headmaster, Mr. Herbert Thomas Rich. But since you know so much, Charles, perhaps you can tell us what subjects Mr. Rich taught at Boston Latin School, where he had formerly been Head of Department. Greek? That's right. Good girl, Helen. He taught German, too.

"I can recall that it was the first year Mr. Rich was Headmaster—that the boys—trying vainly to keep up with the girls, don't scowl, Charles,—you know perfectly well that Helen gets better grades than you and Tommy—well, as I was saying— the boys finally got around to organizing a Boys' Council.

"A Dramatic Club came into being the same year—and we had our first Year Book . . . to say nothing of the first Senior Prom. The School got a first place—the fourth successive time—in Inter-regimental Drill. Indeed, 1929 was the first year that this theatre was used for graduation ceremonies. In case you think I've run out of firsts, Charles, I think I might add that the Girls' Council held the first all-girls assembly in the history of the school. I think that definitely proves feminine superiority. Now I'll let your great-uncle tell you about the old school on Academy Hill—but since he's a mere man I don't expect you'll hear much about the co-eds."

PART III

BRIGHTON HIGH SCHOOL 1841-1897

(John Williamson—costume of 1870's, mutton-chop whiskers, a cane, and a marked stoop.)

(A chair—center stage)

"Now there, now there—how many times must I tell you young whippersnappers that I can navigate without your jogging my elbows (brandishes cane vehemently). What's more; this is for defense; not support. The chair? Of course I see the chair—but I'm only going to make use of it to give you young people a chance to rest your feet. Why, if some of the young 'cream-puffs' of today were to try to keep up to me on my daily six mile constitutional . . . Oh, that's right, Tommy, I am supposed to tell you about the old school. Now don't go nodding at one another like that. I know what you're thinking. You've already made up your minds that whatever sort of School we had then—it couldn't compare with the 'Castle on the Hill.'

"Well (draws reflective diagrams with his cane), I suppose the Brighton High School that was once over on Academy Hill on Rockland Street wasn't quite as big as yours. BUT THERE WERE JUST AS MANY FLOORS.

"Naturally, I don't need to tell you when the School started. Just 100 years ago, come September, that the first pupils entered Brighton High School.

"At that time, the town of Brighton only had 1400 inhabitants. That's correct, Helen. You're quite right when you say that the present High School has 400 more pupils than the entire town had inhabitants in 1841. Guess you must have got your head for figures from my side of the family.

"Don't forget this either—when they voted in town meeting to open a High School—they did it in a real spirit of community service. In those days, the law did not require a town of that size to support a High School.

"What's that, Tommy? How many pupils? You wouldn't be trying to check up on my head for figures—would you? Now, let me see—there were quite a few in that entering class. 72 boys and 63 girls to be exact.

"Of course, the girls were a mite lonesome the first two years, because the boys were taught on the first floor by Master John Ruggles—and the girls by Miss Delia Gardner on the second floor. But the third year, the School became co-educational, and everyone liked it so well, especially the girls, that it's stayed that way to the present.

"Stop scuffling your feet, Charles. If what I've heard about Headmaster Ruggles was true, you couldn't have been noisy like that in his classes. He knew the meaning of the word discipline.

"Strange that none of you have asked about the third floor of the School. Good guess, Tommy. It was a gym—at least in my time. At first they used it for an exhibition hall, but in my day we had military drill and gym there. No sir, they wouldn't have allowed any of this new-fangled jitterbugging in the gym of the old School. Might have shaken down all the plaster, for one thing.

"What did they teach? You needn't smile like that, Charles. Just because you are learning to hack away at a contraption called a typewriter—doesn't mean you know everything.

"In those days, we studied subjects that some of your modern overstuffed professors now call useless, probably because they couldn't pass them—Greek and Latin, for example. But we also got large doses of French, Astronomy, Geology, Rhetoric, to say nothing of Intellectual and Moral Science and Political Economy.

"And what's more, Brighton High School had just as good a reputation then as it has now—even if we didn't have modern improvements—and when one of our graduates left for Harvard or Yale, he invariably made a record that would stand comparison with any of your grads today.

"Teachers? Were they good, Charles? Of course we had good teachers. Now you take Benjamin Wormelle, who came in as Headmaster in 1870. He was a fine man. Went right on teaching till 1904. And he had an excellent colleague—Miss Anna Judson George. But you must know all about her. That's right, Helen. It's in her memory that Brighton High School awards an annual scholarship for excellence in English. Then there was Miss Marion Hawes, who had joined us by 1879, and became assistant master. Women were seldom placed in such positions in those days, so it was a tribute to her ability and leadership that she served in that capacity.

"But I mustn't forget to tell you about a terrible disaster that ALMOST befell our school. Back in 1874, when the town of Brighton was annexed to the City of Boston—there was a good deal of talk about discontinuing Brighton High School. Then a curious event took place. It just goes to show how good we were in those days. Mr. Wormelle, you remember, was Headmaster at the time—Well, he used to have Declamation every Friday. It was also the custom then for supervisors to drop in unannounced to pay the School a visit. One Friday, at this critical time in our School's history, Mr. Mason, a supervisor, happened in during Declamations. It was a big moment. And how our boys rose to the occasion. How about the girls? Why, Helen, you ought to know that girls are only fair in Declamation. That's my opinion, anyway. But as I was saying—this Mr. Mason was so impressed by the excellence of the elocution and the splendid training the pupils were getting in public speaking—the girls as well as the boys—that he there and then decided that the school on Academy Hill should remain open. That was a great day for Brighton High School.

"And now that I've told you something of the early days of Brighton High School, you might like to hear what Mr. William Warren, who addressed the assembly on the opening day of the School in 1841, said to those first pupils:

"'I earnestly hope that the future graduates of this school may realize fully the influence they will possess after their education is completed, and that their lives may be harmonious and an honor to our country and community. May many years of usefulness lie before this school, which begins its life today. May god bless you, teachers, and you pupils, of the Brighton High School of 1841.'

"And now, I, in my humble way, should like to invoke that same blessing for you of 1941."

IN MEMORIAM

To those who knew Mrs. Martha Chadbourne, the school year closes with a consciousness of sorrow that she has not been with us. Her poignant personality has been missed by everyone who felt its impact. In her death in July 1940, the class of 1941 lost a friend—the foreign language department a valued member. Mrs. Chadbourne's contribution to the school, in its scholastic standard and social aims was very real. It lingers with us.

There was, in her uniquely patterned personality a unit in the mosaic of our Brighton High School life which was an essential value. Those pupils who were fortunate enough to have felt it, shared with the teachers closest to her, a glimpse into a noble life. Her life was consciously concerned with the enriching and ennobling of youth.

With gratitude that she was for eight years an integral part of our school, we do however regret that the part she played might not have been for a far longer term.

IN MEMORIAM

Once more the school has suffered a loss in the death of another member of the faculty, Miss Clara W. Barnes. Although she had been in failing health, her passing was sudden and came as a shock to us all.

For forty years Miss Barnes had been in the Boston service. A member of a distinguished family, a graduate of Vassar, a student at European universities, she brought to her work a culture and courtesy that won the respect and affection of her pupils. She was indeed a "gracious lady." We shall miss her.
